

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY

WASHINGTON, D.C.

AU Newsmakers

August 9 – August 16, 2013

Prepared by University Communications

For prior weeks, go to <http://www.american.edu/media/inthedia.cfm>

Top Story

The New Age of Algorithms: How it Affects the Way We Live

Public communication professor Robert Lehrman wrote the Christian Science Monitor cover story that featured communication professor Laura DeNardis' expertise about the most pressing concerns regarding new "Big Data" technology and Internet surveillance including, privacy and inequality. (8/11)

Additional Features

Rebranding Climate Change as a Public Health Issue

Communication professor Matthew Nisbet spoke to Time Magazine online about his research that shows people respond more emotionally to the issue of global warming when it is framed as a public health issue rather than an environmental or national security issue. (8/9)

The Human Costs of a More Secure Border

Washington Post's Post TV spoke to communication professor Carolyn Brown about her documentary, "On the Line", which looks at the struggles of undocumented migrants crossing the U.S.-Mexico border. (8/13)

AU Joins Ranks of Tobacco-Free Universities

By going tobacco- and smoke-free this week, American University is the third Washington-area campus to become a smoke-free campus for start of the new academic year, cited the Washington Post. WTOP.com also highlighted AU's

new initiative. (8/16)

Expertise

Al Qaeda's Widening North African Jihad Confounds Foes

REUTERS

Justice, law and society professor Stephen Tankel spoke to Reuters about the Al Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb expansion into North and West Africa. New York Times online republished this article. (8/9)

IRS Extends Deadline for 'Innocent Spouse' Tax Relief Application

REUTERS

Don Williamson, executive director of the Kogod Tax Center, talked to Reuters about a timeframe expansion proposal for taxpayers who qualify for the innocent spouse tax program, and which types of taxpayers typically qualify for the program. (8/12)

Obama's Call for NSA Reform Drawing Strong Reaction

History professor Allan Lichtman appeared on CBS Evening News to discuss criticism of the Obama administration for suggesting a reform of the National Security Agency's surveillance practices. (8/10)

Does the Chief Justice Have Too Much Power?

With The Atlantic online, law professor Stephen Vladeck discussed solutions for adjusting the balance of power in the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court, which many people feel holds an abundance of power. (8/12)

The Black History of the White House

International service professor Clarence Lusane appeared on WUSA-CBS9 to discuss the black history of the White House on the day of the release of The Butler, the movie chronicling an African-American's career as a White House Butler to eight U.S. presidents. (8/16)

Egypt: U.S. scraps military drills, but not aid

Director of the Peacebuilding and Development Institute Mohammed Abu-Nimer provided analysis of the conflict in Egypt for WJLA-ABC7 and explained a negotiated peace with the Muslim Brotherhood is the best chance to quell the violence. (8/15)

Chill in US-Russia Relations Dims Disarmament Hopes

Following President Obama's press conference on U.S.-Russia relations, international service professor Celeste Wallander provided analysis for CNN International TV and spoke to Agence France Presse about the fleeting likelihood of the president achieving a reduction in nuclear weapon stockpiles with Russia. International service professor Benjamin Jensen spoke with BBC-5 Radio about a souring bilateral U.S.-Russia relations. (8/9, 8/10)