

Doctoral Student Research Scholarship
FY18 Recipients

The following list of Doctoral students has been chosen from a select group of talented students who competed for the Academic Year 2017-2018 scholarship.

College of Arts and Sciences

Marga Andersen

“Like Lions After Slumber: Challenges to Britishness by Jewish and Irish Immigrants in Late-Victorian London”

Paul Behringer

“U.S. and Japanese Intervention in the Russian Civil War: Violence and Barbarism in the Far East”

Kong F. Cheong

“Evolution of an African Entrepot: Strategies, Agency, Materiality, and Identity in the Making of the Swahili in the Indian Ocean World”

Laura Gibson

“It’s Love That Counts: The History of Non-Nuclear Families in American Domestic Sitcoms between 1955 and 1990”

Ivan Grek

“Illiberal Civil Society in Russia, 1992-2000”

Hoching Jiang

“Beyond Racial and Sexual Marginalization: How to Be Gay Asian Men in Los Angeles”

Anna Kaplan

“Memories and Post-Memories of the Integration of the University of Mississippi”

Katherine Kitterman

“‘No Ordinary Feelings’: Mormon Women’s Political Activism, 1870-1896”

Jeffrey Lawrence Levin

“Felix Warburg and Non-Zionist Involvement in the Hebrew University”

Pawel Piotr Styrna

“Nationalism, War, and Revolution: Polish-Russian Relations, 1904 – 1921”

John Villecco

“Why Trump? An Ethnography of Populism in the U.S. Rust Belt”

School of International Service

Laura Bosco

“Contingent upon Contingents: Resolve and the Protection of Civilians in UN Peacekeeping Operations”

Tyler Evans

“Intra-rebel Violence in Turkey’s Kurdish Insurgency”

Anne Julia Kantel

“Situating Legitimacy: Encounters between State-Based and Local Fisheries Lifeworlds in Uganda”

Abby Lindsay

“Identifying Institutional Mechanisms that Promote Social Learning: Evidence from Multi-Stackholder Water Governance in Peru”

School of Communication

Aras Coskuntuncel

“Networking Authoritarian Neoliberalism: Realigned Strategies of Information Control and Networked Protest in the Case of Turkey”

Dorian Hunter Davis

“Presidential Campaigns as Direct News Sources”

David Proper

“The LGBTQ Movement in the Post Marriage Equality Era: Navigating Mediation Opportunities and Challenges During a Time of Political Uncertainty and Change”

Fernanda Ribeiro Rosa

“Internet Gateways: A Sociotechnical Approach to Internet Exchange Points (IXPs)”

Arthur D. Soto-Vásquez

“Digital Mobilization of the Latino Youth Vote: Race, Identity, and Organization”

School of Public Affairs

Catherine Bampoky

“Implementing ‘Travelling Models’ in Senegal: Case Studies of Conditional Cash Transfers, User Fee Exemptions, and Performance-Based Financing”

Megan Doughty

“Race, Class and Domestic Violence in the US Child Protective Services”

Laura Daniela Stevens Leon

“Carbon-Pricing Policies: The Role of the ‘Dirty’ Industries in their Adoption and Design”

CONGRATULATIONS!

For more information about the Doctoral Student Research Scholarship Program go to <http://www.american.edu/provost/grad/internal-funding.cfm> or contact Anita Brown at abrown@american.edu.